

NATIONAL DOCTORS' DAY

Annually, on March 30th, healthcare organizations celebrate National Doctors' Day. First observed in Winder, Georgia in 1933, Doctors' Day honors the contributions physicians make to communities across the country. We, at Lake Granbury Medical Center (LGMC), are proud to honor the work of the more than 230 primary care physicians and specialists on our medical staff – active, courtesy, and consulting.

Caring for the sick and maintaining good health for those who are well requires teamwork of the highest level, and doctors are at the core of this relationship. We work closely with the physicians on our medical staff to deliver quality, personalized care to each patient. Having physicians who share this commitment and our mission to deliver high-quality care is important to us and we're fortunate that members of our medical staff share these beliefs.

With a strong, dedicated, and talented medical staff, LGMC was able to achieve its national recognition as a Top Performer hospital. And so, in honor of Doctors' Day 2015, we specifically like to recognize all our active medical staff for their contributions and their dedication to our patients.
